YOUR OWN HANDS

Three papers. The only part of this book you are asked to write in.

Edition 1 · November 2026 · given free with Nobody Lives in Your Numbers

Every other page in this book came out of a printing machine. These three papers were left unfinished on purpose. They are waiting for a hand. Yours.

Think of what your family has actually kept across the years.

Not the gadgets; every gadget grew old and was replaced. The kept things are smaller, and worth more. They wait together on one shelf:

- A diary.
- A letter.
- A recipe in a handwriting you would recognise from across a room, after decades.

Machines print information. A hand writes proof. Proof that a particular person, on a particular day, cared enough to sit down.

That shelf is where these three papers are trying to go.

You have read enough of this book to ask the right question first. So here are the four questions, answered in print, in the exact place where fine print usually hides.

WHY IS THIS FREE?

Because the promise of this book is that by its last page you will not need me. A promise like that has to survive after the cover closes. These papers are how it survives.

WHAT IS THE BUSINESS MODEL?

You already paid it, when you bought the book. That is the whole transaction. No sign-up, no box asking for your email, nothing you have to hand over to use them. The address printed in the book opens a page with one button. It asks for nothing and records nothing.

WHAT DO I GAIN?

If you have come this far, chapter after chapter, and read all the way down to this question, you have already given me the greatest gift I could ask for: your time, and your trust. And if you can now make your own financial decisions with confidence, I have achieved exactly what I promised myself. I have always believed that people already have the potential, the confidence and the ability to learn; sometimes they simply do not recognise it in themselves. My only goal was to hold up a mirror, so you could see that strength for yourself.

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER YOU SAY YES?

Nothing that includes me. What you write here, I will never see. It stays on your phone, or in your home. That is the point of it.

HOW TO USE THESE PAPERS

You have reached this file at the end of a chapter, with every decision already made and held. That was the chapter's work. This is where the decisions are written down, once, and signed.

Three papers.

- The first protects your money from you.
- The second protects you from one bad hour.
- The third protects your family from the worst day.

Two ways to fill them, and both are complete.

- On a phone: open this file in the free Adobe Acrobat Reader app, or in the Google Drive app and tap the pencil, then tap any line, type, and save; your phone's own PDF viewer may only let you read it.
- On paper: print it at home on A4, single-sided, at 100 percent, and write in pencil first.

Either way, nothing you type or write leaves your hands.

Three papers, three homes.

- The first, once it is signed, goes where your own eyes will fall on it, inside a cupboard door, the first page of a diary.
- The second lives in your wallet, or in the space between your phone and its cover, or on your phone's lock screen; its own page shows how.
- The third lives sealed, and its own last page shows you how. It also answers the question you are already asking, who gets to read it while I am alive. The answer is: no one you don't choose.

Two instructions, and they are the opposite of what school taught you.

- Pencil first, and badly. Guesses. A wrong number written down can be corrected; a right number floating in your head just keeps floating. Ink only what you have stopped correcting.
- And keep this file blank: fill a printed copy, or a saved copy, never the original. Paper never asks you to update it, and you will want fresh copies in five years.

Two lines on the first paper wait for the chapter on how much, which comes next. No line here is to be guessed. A blank is only a line whose moment has not come.

Where a blank could be read two ways, an italic line beneath it shows one filled answer. A specimen, not an instruction.

If two people earn in your house, this gift is two gifts.

That is the other reason to keep the original blank, and why the card’s page carries it twice. On a phone, save the file twice, once under each name, and fill each copy on its own. Money may be joint. Panic is always personal.

And if you are not the one who holds the money in your house, this file is still yours. Hand the third paper to the one who does, and ask for 20 minutes. Some households have their first honest conversation about money over exactly that page.

Every rule, figure and address in this file was checked on the date printed on its last page. If anything has changed since, the address in the book carries the newest edition.

BEFORE YOU PRINT

1. Paper: ordinary A4, 70 or 80 gsm. Nothing heavier is needed.
2. Scale: 100 percent, or “actual size”. Not “fit to page”. The card page carries a 50 mm bar so you can check with a ruler.
3. Sides: single-sided. The third paper is sealed as loose sheets, and the first goes on a wall.
4. Which pages: the first paper is pages 7 to 15; the card is page 17; the third paper is pages 20 to 27. The reading pages need no printing.
5. Pencil for the first paper, until you stop correcting. Pen for the signature, the card and the third paper.
6. A photocopy shop will laminate the card for a few rupees. Cut it out and fold it first, then have it laminated, with a thin clear border left when it is trimmed.

PAPER ONE · THE CONSTITUTION

Every country that expects storms writes one. Not because its people are weak. Because its people are human, and a human under pressure needs something decided before the pressure. A line filled by feel is a line a feeling can hijack later; yours fits on these nine pages, each line waiting for its real answer.

MY GOALS

Every rupee I invest is walking toward one of these.

For	Bill or income	₹ on that date	Year	Near, middle or far today	Equity figure (percent)
e.g. Her admission	bill	₹ 30 lakh	2034	far	60

Not a direction. A number, on a date. A goal with no year cannot be protected, so give it the year you would honestly aim for, and revise it. The equity figure is the ceiling the date sets, brought down to what I know I can hold through a fall. Retirement is an income, not a bill: only its first three years count as near money when it arrives.

WHAT I HOLD TODAY

Every rupee that has a day waiting for it, counted across the whole house: every app, every folio, every family member's name, and the provident fund that cannot fall. The house we live in, the gold the family wears, the plot in the family's name and the floor stay outside.

Where it sits (app, folio, bank, EPF, PPF, NPS, deposit)	For which goal	Value today ₹	Counts as equity ₹	Counts as debt ₹

An equity fund counts whole as equity. A fund holding both is read from its factsheet's net equity. EPF and PPF are debt. Money waiting to move into equity is equity. Gold or silver kept for a goal is equity, because it can be down on the day. In NPS, the equity part is equity and the rest is debt. An arbitrage fund is debt, for part of the debt only and never for money due within three years.

MY ALLOCATION

So my money is _____ percent equity and _____ percent debt, because because every goal is more than seven years away except the car in 2029, and because in 2020 I kept every instalment going

You did not pick a number. Your life did.

MY FUNDS

Three jobs: near, middle and far money. One fund for each job, two at most, and the second only if it does genuinely different work. Three to five funds for almost every investor; six at the outer edge.

Fund	Its job (near, middle or far)	Why it earned its place	The trial, passed, year by year
			☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐
			☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐
			☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐
			☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐
			☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐
			☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐ ☐

A fund fails the trial when it stops being what I bought, or trails both its benchmark and its category average for three straight years while still being what it claims, or has outgrown its hunting ground. Then: stop its SIP first, and move the money out on my date, never in a mood.

A sector or theme fund holds only money I could lose entirely with every goal still met in full.

MY FLOOR

_____ months of what my life costs, kept where a fall cannot touch it.

One month of it in my main account, the one my salary comes into, not the one I spend from: _____

With only one bank account, keep all of it in the liquid fund.

The rest in a liquid fund: _____ (fund, where it is held)

Reachable without me by: _____ (the other adult who can operate the account alone and whose name is on the fund)

6 months · one month in the salary account at ___ Bank · the rest in ___ Liquid Fund, held jointly, anyone or survivor

The floor has no date, so it stays outside my allocation, in a fund of its own. Once full, I stop adding. If I ever use it, I refill it before any new investment. The market never feeds my family. The floor does.

MY CRISIS ORDER

When life, not the market, demands money, I touch things in this order:

1. The floor, which is: _____
2. Near money, which is: _____
3. Middle money, which is: _____
4. Equity, last, which is: _____

Equity signs last. It signed first only for people who never wrote this line.

IN A CRASH

Nothing is sold. The floor pays for life. The monthly amount continues. My date decides what moves, and only on my date. (Printed for you.)

I SELL EARLY FOR THREE REASONS ONLY

A goal crossed a line on the calendar. A fund failed its trial. A gap of more than 5 points that new money or withdrawals could not close within a year, or any such gap when no money goes in or out. Each on my date, with the reason written first. A red year is never a reason. (Printed for you.)

MY COVERS

THE FIRST COVER · TERM

The sum, built, not guessed.

Loans the family would owe without me: ₹ _____

The family's yearly expenses my income pays: ₹ _____ a year, for _____ years:

₹ _____

Dated goals the family would still have to pay: ₹ _____
Minus what is already built, the corpus counted with its equity cut by a third, plus cover of my own, never my employer's: ₹ _____

Cover to buy: ₹ _____

Bought: ₹ _____ from _____, ending in the year _____

- ☐ Pure term, no return of premium.
- ☐ Cover ends when dependence ends, not at 85 or 99.
- ☐ No savings mixed in.
- ☐ Issued under the Married Women's Property Act, with a trustee named, if I run a business (a man's own policy only).
- ☐ Every answer on the form was mine, and true.

THE SECOND COVER · HEALTH

Mine, in my own name: ₹ _____ with _____

Spouse and children on it ☐

Parents on their own policy: ₹ _____ with _____

Super top-up of ₹ _____, starting above ₹ _____ (my main cover), with

_____

Renewal month: _____. It never lapses.

- ☐ Room rent, no limit.
- ☐ No sub-limits.
- ☐ Day-care covered.
- ☐ No co-payment.
- ☐ Exclusions read.

Policy papers, and where they are kept, go on the third paper.

THE AMOUNT I WILL NEVER STOP

₹ _____ every month.

The total, counted across every SIP, every app, every fund I run. Not the perfect amount. The one that survives every version of my year. In a hard month, the extras may rest. This number is the last to fall.

This line waits for the chapter on how much.

MY PAUSE

I may pause my monthly amount only if: _____

_____

A red month is not on this line. It never will be.

This line waits for the same chapter.

MY NEVERS

I will never act on a promised return. (Printed for you. The rest are yours.)

I will never _____

I will never _____

Signed on a calm day, by the only advisor who is paid nothing and loses everything I lose:

Signature _____ Date _____

Witnessed, if you choose, by the person allowed to hold me to it: _____

Reviewed on: _____ . _____ . _____ . _____ . _____

> Jis din haath kaanpenge, us din yeh panna nahi kaanpega.
> The day your hands shake, this page will not.

MY DATE · THE APPOINTMENT

Once a year, on _____, and on no other day. A date I cannot forget. The same date reseals the third paper. If I am building all of this for the first time, in this order: the floor, the two covers, the nominees, the goals, the allocation.

The yearly check:

1. Goals: moved by the calendar, at seven, five and three years.
2. Allocation: the share in equity today, against the share my goals call for this year.
3. Rebalancing: if the gap is over 5 points, new money goes to the short side, or withdrawals come from the long side; sell only if that would take more than a year, or if no money goes in or out.
4. Funds: the trial, each one.
5. Floor: full, at what life costs today, refilled before anything new.
6. Term cover: still at least the sum on the page before.
7. Health cover: everyone covered, parents on their own policy, enough for one serious illness at our hospital.
8. Nominees: every account, folio, locker and policy, including anything opened this year.
9. Will: written, still true, naming the same people as the nominees.
10. File: filled, still true, resealed, and my family knows where it is.

Items 1 to 4 wait for this date unless a goal is added, dropped or moved. Check items 5 to 10 again whenever life changes: a marriage, a birth, a divorce, a death in the family, a new loan or a new job.

MY DATE · THE APPOINTMENT

Write down this year's check: the target, today's figure, the gap and what you did, even if it was nothing.

Year	Target equity, percent	Today's equity, percent	Gap, points	What I did (or nothing)

Tick each item of the yearly check as you finish it. The numbers are the ten items on the page before.

Year	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐

Next year's appointment starts from this row.

THE RECORD

Every fall I sat through without breaking a rule. Write the year.

A fall counts when the market drops enough to frighten you into a decision. You will know. Write the year you did not make it.

20 __	20 __	20 __	20 __	20 __
20 __	20 __	20 __	20 __	20 __
20 __	20 __	20 __	20 __	20 __
20 __	20 __	20 __	20 __	20 __

Funds print their track records everywhere. This one is yours, and it is the only record that decides what you actually keep. No one can print it for you. It can only be earned, one storm at a time.

Protect the streak.

PAPER TWO · THE CRASH CARD

Print the next page and fill it in pen. Cut each card out along the dotted line, then fold it along the dashed line so the two sides back each other. The shop that photocopies will usually laminate it; have it laminated after folding, with a thin clear border left when it is trimmed. It is sized for a wallet, or for the space between your phone and its cover, because the bad day will find you outside your house. The sheet carries it twice.

And because the bad day will find you with your phone in your hand, this paper lives in a second place: the screen you unlock a hundred times a day.

The lock screen. The address in the book offers an image of the card's front with three blanks. Open it in your phone's photos, choose Edit, then Markup or Text, type your three lines, save, and set it as your lock screen. Now a feeling has to read your own words before it reaches the button.

Three of its blanks may stop you, so settle them here. The number: the farthest line on your Constitution, the goal that equity is carrying, because that is the money a crash will argue with. The face: if no name comes to mind, write your own. The person you are protecting is the 70-year-old who will have only you. The call: choose someone now, on a calm day. Not for advice, but so one human voice stands between your thumb and the button. And if there is truly no one, the card already carries your rule: one sunrise.

READ ME BEFORE YOU SELL.

You wrote this when you could think. Borrow that for two minutes.

My number: ₹ _____ by _____.
Today's question is on track or off track, not surviving or not.

My floor holds _____ months.
My family eats from the floor, not from the screen.
One check: does life need this money this month, or does a feeling need relief tonight? Only one of those is a reason.

THIS MONEY HAS A FACE: _____.

You wrote that name for exactly this minute.

Before selling, I call _____ first.
If there is no one to call: one sunrise. Nothing true about 30 years changes overnight. Only feelings do.

A feeling can be hijacked. A number can only be checked.

Signed, the calmest version of me: _____

on _____

READ ME BEFORE YOU SELL.

You wrote this when you could think. Borrow that for two minutes.

My number: ₹ _____ by _____.
Today's question is on track or off track, not surviving or not.

My floor holds _____ months.
My family eats from the floor, not from the screen.
One check: does life need this money this month, or does a feeling need relief tonight? Only one of those is a reason.

THIS MONEY HAS A FACE: _____.

You wrote that name for exactly this minute.

Before selling, I call _____ first.
If there is no one to call: one sunrise. Nothing true about 30 years changes overnight. Only feelings do.

A feeling can be hijacked. A number can only be checked.

Signed, the calmest version of me: _____

on _____

Fold on the dashed line. Cut on the dotted line.

PAPER THREE · IF I CANNOT BE ASKED

Somewhere in this country, right now, money sits in accounts whose owners are gone and whose families never knew the accounts existed. In October 2025 the government counted it: more than ₹1.8 lakh crore, in bank deposits, insurance, shares, dividends, mutual funds and provident funds. Bank deposits alone had sent ₹98,073 crore to the Reserve Bank's fund for unclaimed money by 31 January 2026. The pile is large enough that the regulators built search desks for it, and in May 2026 one portal to search all of them except the provident fund. And almost every rupee behind those desks was loved by someone who simply never wrote one page.

And unwritten money does a second thing, quieter and crueller than getting lost: it gets suspected.

When no one can see where everything is, grief has to share the room with doubt. Who knew, who took, who hid. A family that can see everything never has to wonder about anyone. Both wounds are optional. This paper removes both.

Twenty minutes. The highest-paying twenty minutes in this entire book.

Two protections guard these pages, and you should know both before you write.

- First: locations, never passwords. Names, never full numbers. So that this paper, even in the wrong hands, can never move a single rupee. If any line tempts you to write a password, you are filling it wrong. But two kinds of lines live here, and only one is protected that way. The account lines a stranger can read and still move nothing. The physical lines, the locker, the key, the gold, a stranger can simply take. So those lines get a pointer, not an address. Write who knows, not where it is.
- Second: the seal, because a few lines here, the locker, the gold, are not for reading while you are alive, except by the one hand you choose. The last page of this paper shows you the seal. Nothing here is finished until it is sealed.

And one thing this paper is not.

It is not a will, and it cannot do a will’s work. It shows your family where everything is. Only a will says who it belongs to. If you have not written one, this file has done half the job, and you now know which half is missing. The chapter that sent you here shows how short a will can be.

Print the eight pages that follow, or save a filled copy and print it. The filled pages are what get sealed.

THE MAP · WHERE MONEY LIVES

WHAT IS INVESTED

Mutual funds · the apps or platforms I use: _____ · ☐ Nominee filed

_____

And the master key: every mutual fund folio in this country answers to my PAN. With the PAN and the email in this file, one consolidated statement can be pulled that lists every folio held against it, however many SIPs, however many apps. Funds bought under a different email or an old name may sit outside that statement, and SEBI's tracing desk, MITRA, exists for exactly those.

Demat · the broker or bank holding it / DP name: _____ ·

last four of the client ID _____ · ☐ Nominee filed

EPF / PPF / NPS: _____ · ☐ Nominee filed

_____

UAN for EPF · the bank or post office holding the PPF · PRAN for NPS. With the EPF comes a life cover of up to ₹7 lakh and a family pension. Both are claimed, never sent.

My employer or business · whom to inform, and what waits there (provident fund, gratuity, leave encashment, group insurance, the money most families never claim):

_____

_____

_____

WHAT IS BANKED AND OWED

Bank · name / branch / account type: _____ ·

last four digits _____ · ☐ Joint, either or survivor · ☐ Nominee filed

Bank · name / branch / account type: _____ ·

last four digits _____ · ☐ Joint, either or survivor · ☐ Nominee filed

Bank · name / branch / account type: _____ ·

last four digits _____ · ☐ Joint, either or survivor · ☐ Nominee filed

Bank · name / branch / account type: _____ ·

last four digits _____ · ☐ Joint, either or survivor · ☐ Nominee filed

Insurance · company / type (term, health, other) / last four of the policy number / where the policy paper physically is / who is named on it: · ☐ Nominee filed

Cards · which bank each belongs to, and the last four digits, so they can be blocked:

What I owe · loans, EMIs, cards; the family must know the minus side too:

What is owed to me · money lent, a chit, a deposit with a builder; no bank will ever look for this, and it dies with the one who remembered it:

Auto-debits that will keep firing until someone stops them · SIPs, premiums, subscriptions:

WHAT IS PHYSICAL

Locker · bank / branch / who knows where the key is:

· ☐ Nominee filed

Property papers · where they physically sit:

Gold and everything else · who knows where it is kept, and roughly what:

My own papers · where the PAN card, Aadhaar card and passport physically are. Every claim will ask for them.

My will · where the signed original physically sits / who witnessed it / who I named to carry it out:

Coins, if I hold any · the exchange only.

Coins held in my own wallet cannot go on this paper, because there the password is the money. Note that they exist, and that a separate arrangement was made. If it was not, they end with me.

THE KEYS THAT ARE NOT PASSWORDS

My PAN: _____

It sits on every form I ever signed; here, it is the master key that finds everything. Nobody can spend this page. Somebody could try to impersonate me with it. Which is why it is sealed, and why it never carries a password. It is the only full number this file carries, and the one every claim begins with.

The phone number every OTP goes to: _____ ·

☐ Prepaid · ☐ Postpaid

Keep this number alive for at least six months. A prepaid line unused for 90 days with less than ₹20 of balance is cut off, so recharge it; a postpaid bill is simply paid. Later, the number can be moved into a family member's name at the operator's store, with the death certificate and your own ID. Accounts do not die with a person, but they go silent with a SIM.

The email statements arrive at: _____

☐ I have named, in this email account's own settings, the person who may open it if it goes quiet. (Google and Apple both offer this. It takes five minutes.)

Nominee check: for every line in the map, is a nominee filed, and updated after the last marriage, birth, or loss in this family? The boxes on each line are for this. Check each one on its statement, not from memory: fund house statements show the nominee on record. Older accounts may have none at all.

The first call · the one person my family should reach before any decision:

_____

THE PAGE FOR THE ONE WHO NEVER LOGGED IN

If you are reading this page the way it was meant to be read, then someone who loved you also prepared for you. Read it slowly. Then read it again tomorrow. Nothing on it expires.

Four things, from the person who filled this file, and from the book it came in.

Nothing must be decided this month. Money that waited years can wait one more season. Grief will be asked to do paperwork; let the paperwork wait for the grief.

You will never need a password. Every bank, every fund house, every insurer has a door built for exactly this day, and it opens with documents, not logins, as long as a nominee was named. Where none was, the same door still opens: for bank deposits up to at least ₹15 lakh, a simpler claim with the death certificate and a signed promise; above that, the law asks for a court paper first. That is the whole reason for the nominee check on File page 4. So if anyone ever says they need a PIN, an OTP or a password to release the money, that caller is not from any bank. Put the phone down.

Anyone who arrives with a deadline is not arriving for you. In the weeks after a loss, salesmen come dressed as helpers. A promised return, an urgent transfer, a paper that must be signed today. Each one is a stranger's hand reaching for what was kept for you. This file makes you the one person in the room who does not need a stranger.

Move slowly, and in this order.

1. Sit with the map.
2. Gather the papers once: ten certified copies of the death certificate, because every claim keeps one; the PAN and Aadhaar of the person who is gone; your own ID; a cancelled cheque of your own account.
3. Claim what already has your name against it. A nomination is a door, not a deed. It gets the money released to you without a court. Who finally owns it is settled by the will, or by the law where there is none. Take the money out of the institution first. Divide it after, with the will open in front of everyone. A bank must settle within 15 calendar days of complete papers, and owes you interest if it is late.
4. Let the floor pay for the months ahead.
5. Decide nothing about investments for the next season. When it ends, the book this file came in has a page for money that arrives all at once. Start there, not with a stranger.

The doors, as they were named on the date at the end of this file:

Bank deposits	UDGAM, the Reserve Bank's search
Bank deposits, insurance, shares, dividends and mutual funds, at once	the Unclaimed Assets Portal, unclaimedassetsportal.in, opened by the Finance Ministry in May 2026
Mutual funds	MITRA, SEBI's tracing desk
Shares and dividends	IEPF
Insurance	the insurer's own claims desk, and IRDAI's Bima Bharosa for complaints
Provident fund, pension and the ₹7 lakh cover	EPFO, through the last employer

Names change. Doors do not. The address in the book carries the newest list.

And one thing I believe, as the person who wrote the book this file came in: whoever filled these pages did not fill them because they expected to leave. They filled them because they refused to leave you lost.

THREE THINGS CANNOT WAIT FOR THE SEASON

The health cover. If the person who died was the one who bought the family policy, cover for everyone else on it does not simply continue. The insurer has to be told, and the policy put in a surviving name, at or before the next renewal. Miss it and the policy lapses, and every waiting period the family served over 10 years is served again from zero.

The auto-debits. Stop them in the first week. An account nobody has claimed yet keeps paying out, then starts bouncing, then starts collecting charges. Once the bank has been told, the account is frozen, and a debit that bounces can carry a charge.

The claims that only begin when asked. Term insurance, provident fund, gratuity, and the monthly pension that starts on the day someone files for it and not a day earlier.

Everything else can wait. These three are the exception, and they are the three families almost always miss.

IN MY OWN HAND

One sentence is enough. Write it in the language your family dreams in. It will be read more times than every other line in this file.

THE SEAL AND THE KEEPER

When every line is filled, the eight filled pages go into an envelope.

1. If you filled this on a phone, print those eight pages now; a sealed envelope cannot be opened by a password, and that is its whole point.
2. Put them in any envelope and seal it.
3. Sign your name across the flap, with the date, the way things that matter have always been sealed in this country.

That signature is a lock that works on love: anyone who respects you will not break it, and if anyone ever does, you will know.

On the front, write: To be opened by _____, only if I am not here.

Then choose the Keeper.

The one person who will hold this envelope, or know exactly where it lives. The Keeper does not have to share your surname. Family, for this page, is whoever you would trust with your worst day.

The night you seal it, hand it over, or point to its place, and say six words:

> “If anything ever happens, start here.”

Count the years of silence those six words just ended. Then tell one more person that the envelope exists. A perfect file nobody can find protects nobody.

Once a year, on the date written on your Constitution, open it yourself.

Refresh what changed: accounts, and people, because the first call and the Keeper can change too. Then seal it again, with a new signature and a new date across the flap. Do not tidy the old seals away. A flap carrying years of dated signatures says something no bank statement ever will: someone kept choosing you, year after year.

And one instruction for the Keeper.

If two years pass with no new signature on this flap, ask. That is the only thing you are ever required to do.

In your own hands.

Edition 1
Every rule, figure, date and address in this file was checked on 27 October 2026
The address printed in the book carries any later edition.

© 2026 Tisha B Satwani. From Nobody Lives in Your Numbers. This file is a record you keep. It is not investment, legal or tax advice.